

*My tea is nearly ready and the sun has left the sky;
It's time to take the window to see Leerie going by;
For every night at teatime and before you take your seat,
With lantern and with ladder he comes posting up the street.
Now Tom would be a driver and Maria go to sea,
And my papa's a banker and as rich as he can be;
But I, when I am stronger and can choose what I'm to do,
Oh Leerie, I'll go round at night and light the lamps with you!
For we are very lucky, with a lamp before the door,
And Leerie stops to light it as he lights so many more;
And O! before you hurry by with ladder and with light,
O Leerie, see a little child and nod to him tonight!*

— THE LAMPLIGHTER,
ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Perched above St Andrew Square, Lamplighters tips its hat to the Leeries of old - those twilight wanderers who brought Edinburgh's nights to life with a single flame.

SPIRITS

The lamps burned bright, and the night drew curious company.

Moths, beetles, rare insects shimmered in the glow, wings flickering like sparks.

*Some found their way into a lamplighter's pocket, later slipped into jars for collectors –
a side trade of light and shadow where even the most devoted naturalist might marvel at the smallest creatures worth their weight in gold.*

LAMPLIGHTERS

BEERS

In Edinburgh's haer, the lamplighter was a beacon with boots.

*Lamp by lamp he marked a path through the haze,
a steady glow against the blur.*

It was said the lamps outside taverns always burned brighter, as though fed by songs and froth within.

Some even claimed the cheer could carry the flame higher.

*More than streets, he lit the way home,
guiding strangers safely through the dark.*

LIGHT BITES

Between shadows and flame, the lamplighter carried more than his ladder.

Messages whispered, meetings arranged, glances exchanged beneath the lamp's soft halo.

*In closes and hidden corners,
he was as much a matchmaker as a watchman
his light guiding not only the street,
but also the hearts that lingered there.*
