

*My tea is nearly ready and the sun has left the sky;
It's time to take the window to see Leerie going by;*

*For every night at teatime and before you take your seat,
With lantern and with ladder he comes posting up the street.*

*Now Tom would be a driver and Maria go to sea,
And my papa's a banker and as rich as he can be;*

*But I, when I am stronger and can choose what I'm to do,
Oh Leerie, I'll go round at night and light the lamps with you!*

*For we are very lucky, with a lamp before the door,
And Leerie stops to light it as he lights so many more;*

*And O! before you hurry by with ladder and with light,
O Leerie, see a little child and nod to him tonight!*

— THE LAMPLIGHTER,
ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Perched above St Andrew Square, Lamplighters tips its hat to the Leeries of old - those twilight wanderers who brought Edinburgh's nights to life with a single flame.

COCKTAILS

*At dusk, the lamplighter set out with ladder and oil, a quiet keeper of time.
Children watched for the 'Leerie,' a friend in the shadows, his spark a gentle sign that bedtime was near.*

*By dawn, he returned again,
snuffing them out in silence,
leaving only the faint trace of smoke curling in the morning air.*

WINE

Through cobbled streets and narrow wynds, his whistle carried ahead of him.

*Some called it cheer, others called it warning.
A sound to tell you a lamplighter was near.*

In a city without light, his song was as steady as his flame, a reminder that someone was always watching over the dark.

SPIRITS

The lamps burned bright, and the night drew curious company.

Moths, beetles, rare insects shimmered in the glow, wings flickering like sparks.

Some found their way into a lamplighter's pocket, later slipped into jars for collectors – a side trade of light and shadow where even the most devoted naturalist might marvel at the smallest creatures worth their weight in gold.

LAMPLIGHTERS

BEERS

In Edinburgh's haer, the lamplighter was a beacon with boots.

*Lamp by lamp he marked a path through the haze,
a steady glow against the blur.*

It was said the lamps outside taverns always burned brighter, as though fed by songs and froth within.

Some even claimed the cheer could carry the flame higher.

More than streets, he lit the way home, guiding strangers safely through the dark.

*Between shadows and flame,
the lamplighter carried more than his ladder.*

Messages whispered, meetings arranged, glances exchanged beneath the lamp's soft halo.

*In closes and hidden corners,
he was as much a matchmaker as a watchman
his light guiding not only the street,
but also the hearts that lingered there.*
